One of Heads of Rum Fleet Off Atlantic Held

Arrest Is Expected to Result in Evidence of Liquor Smuggling Syndicate.

(By The Associated Press)
NORFOLK, May 26.—Federal prohibition agents today were running down evidence of a liquor smuggling syndicate following the arrest here of William L. Burwell, alias William E. Baker, who they said had confessed that he was operating as sales agent for an organization operating the rum runners off the Virginia capes for the past week. Burwell self-styled "second in command" of the Atlantic Coast rum fleet, his wife and Rex D. Sheldon, all of Norfolk, were arrested yesterday at a hotel where they were held under guard all day and last night. Warrants for their arrest charged unlawful conspiring to smuggle and transport liquor in violation of the laws of the United States. The other two also were said to have confessed to a connection with the liquor ring.

Mayor and Benton Air Differences

Differences of opinion as to the necessity of the assistant commonwealth's attorney being present in the mayor's courtroom during the trial of cases were aired between Mayor Harry Wooding and J. E. Benton during this morning's session.

The trouble arose over the arrest of Mr. Benton's attorney in a case which provides a fee for the commonwealth's attorney. The case was tried in the absence of Mr. Benton, although he was in the building. The fee was not placed with the costs until he called. Mr. Benton entered the courtroom, the mayor spoke to him about the matter in the form of objection to his absence during trial of a case at which his presence was helpful. Mr. Benton replied that he was always there, if not in the courtroom, he was in the adjoining mayor's office or somewhere in the building and could be easily reached. At this point he called attention to the fact that often the mayor interrupts a hearing for attorneys or even officers who have to be called into the room. He cited one instance in which the court waited not less than half an hour for an attorney to come over from his office, when he had been notified at the beginning of the session.

The mayor replied to this statement and in plain words told Mr. Benton that so far as he was concerned it would not be necessary for him to be present in the future.

Mr. Benton reminded the mayor that he had always put forth every effort in dealing with cases for the commonwealth and called his attention to the fact that he was courteous to all the police and helped them in every way possible on the case and that he thought he was doing the same respect and treatment accorded other state officers and lawyers.

Mr. Benton inquired of the mayor why he could not lay aside a narrow mind and be called into the courtroom, the custom he follows in dealing with attorneys. Mayor Wooding then informed Mr. Benton that he would deal with the cases as they were reached.

When the incident was closed the mayor told Mr. Benton that he had no apologies to make or anything to retract.

Begin Work On Library Building

The contract for the new public library has been awarded to C. M. Weber, contractor, he being the lowest bidder. The building when completed will cost about $28,000, including the most modern system of heating, plumbing and electric fixtures.

The exterior is of classic design to conform to the Memorial Mansion with a projecting cornice and flat roof. The first floor will be about on the level with first floor of the Mansion which will make the two buildings appear more alike and incidentally allow large windows to light the interior.

Upon entering the building through a spacious vestibule, one will arrive in a large lobby in which will be the attendant's desk. The arrangement at this point has been worked out after study and observation of other libraries so that all of the rooms have large openings from the lobby, the attendant will have supervision over the entire first floor and may be easily reached by anyone in any part of the building. This arrangement with the aid of house and telephone lines will enable the building to be operated with the least number of employees possible.

In the right of the lobby is a large general reading room and on the left a similar reading room for children; these rooms are particularly well lighted and have chimneys to add to the appearance of comfort. The lobby will be books in open cases. In the rear of lobby will be a large stock room, which will provide for the growth of books for many years. Opening off from this is a reference room where books that are to be used temporarily may be placed. Opening from the stock room is a librarian's room and work room. In the work room such duties as labeling, new books, etc., will be done. A book lift in this room communicates with basement for bringing up new books.

In the basement will be a spacious room for children's club, future stock room, general storage, rest room for employees, janitors room and room for fuel and heating apparatus. Also room for receiving and unpacking books as they arrive from time to time.

Rest rooms and toilets are provided in convenient places for men and women. Also drinking fountains may be found just outside rest room. No time will be lost in carrying the building to completion on plans and specifications prepared by Herd and Chesterman.

C., are investigating the killing of Bert Galloway, a negro aged perhaps forty years, by Mrs. Dora Medlin, a middle-aged woman of that place who has been placed under a bond of $500 for the ensuing thirty days. This bond to be raised and all proceedings dismissed if, within that time, the further evidence developed her is secured.

In the case of Mrs. Medlin, the shooting so far as can be found, the story which Mrs. Medlin has told the Reidsville authorities is that Galloway was observed by Mrs. Medlin prowling about her home, that he had been there for some time and that she had seen him. She said she went to the door and ordered the negro away but instead of doing

Virginia Statesman Has Bronchitis and Is Compelled to Cancel Whitnell Engagement.

Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, who was to have made the principal address at the Whitnell Rural Life Conference this morning was compelled to cancel his engagement, reports from Lynchburg being that the Senator had lost his voice and that he could not speak above a whisper, this being ascribed to a return of bronchitis from which he has recently suffered.

The inability of the Senator to appear was a source of disappointment to thousands of people who have gathered at Whitnell today to observe "Farmers' Day."

While promoters of the conference were advised last night that Mr. Glass could not fulfill the engagement, the reception committee was not so advised and it was on hand at half past eight o'clock this morning at the Burton Hotel, waiting for him in order to escort him to Whitnell. The committee waited until notified by Dr. J. A. C. Chandler, president of the reception committee was C. J. Ashworth, chairman; J. C. Blair, R. T. Carter and W. E. Gardner of this city.

DuBoise will preach at eleven o'clock and Dr. J. P. McConnell of the Bedford Normal will be heard. The Douglas of Schoolfield, will lead in community singing and Dr. Kate Waller Barrett will present the Florence Crittenton Mission. The conference will close with an address by Dr. J. A. C. Chandler on Christian Citizenship.

Mrs. Beverly opened the sessions this morning in the high school auditorium which was well crowded. She expressed disappointment over Senator Glass's inability to be present and at the same time read a telegram she had received from him in which he stated that the condition of his throat prevented him from speaking. Speaking for the day included Professor Hutcheson who made an appeal for greater cooperation between the constructive forces of the country and the city and the elimination of differences which he said, can be bridged through the medium of mutual understanding. O. B. Martin of the Department of Agriculture also spoke this morning and Miss Frieda Kountz made an address replacing Mrs. V. Beverly Munford who was unable to be present.

About four or five thousand farmers are attending the exercises today and J. V. Jorner is expected to have a large audience when he speaks on the subject of "The Tobacco Grower's Opportunity." The attendance today would have been larger, it is said, but for the fact that the present opportunity is a golden one for the tobacco growers to plant their crop after a complete absence of suitable seasons.

This he approached her in a menacing way and the woman, having into the house and secured her revolver. When she again reached the door, the negro was there with his hands outstretched in a way which prompted the white woman to raise the pistol and shoot the negro when she uttered freely with the authorities. She maintained that she shot in defense of her own life.

The negro before dying is said not to have named any person for shooting him but insisted "somebody shot me."

Rome Denies To Methodists Of U.S. Right To Build Sumptuous Structure

(Special to The Bee)
(Copyright 1923, Chicago Tribune)
ROME, May 26.—The city of Rome will not allow American Methodists to build the sumptuous building they had planned on Monte Mario overlooking the Vatican and St. Peter's church.

A high city official stated that it was unfortunate that the Methodists had chosen Monte Mario for the site of their new college with dormitories and a chapel as Monte Mario is too close to the seat of Catholicism and predominates it.

There is a feeling in official circles that the Methodists' choice of the locality was interpreted by the Catholics as a desire to set up a rival and contrasting institution right next door to the Vatican. The official was considered offended by the Methodists' people, an official said. Therefore to avoid any unpleasantness, the official said that the Methodists' property on Monte Mario may be bought in the day of advanced cost of property.

The Federation of all the Catholic associations in Rome passed a resolution today requesting government

School Teacher Quits Her Job To Walk 'Round World

BY JOSEPHINE VAN DE GRIFT
(Special to The Bee.)

NEW YORK, May 26.—"If you want the best university education in the world—get out and hike for it."

So says pretty 22-year-old Yvonne Losch who is walking around the world to get it.

She is a school teacher from Woodlawn, Md. But children ask so many questions that even school teachers aren't always sure about. Yvonne determined to learn about the world at first hand.

She hiked from Maine to California and back again. Then she took a little jaunt into Europe.

"And the very best thing I learned," she says, "was that human nature isn't half as bad as it's made out to be."

In all my hiking I never had a single disagreeable encounter. I met tramps and roughnecks but the only time I ever used my gun was at night when I wanted to scare away coyotes. One great big burly fellow went for miles to catch me a pair of water. Another one walked along the road and taught me how I could read the signs—the bent twigs and the chalked arrows—that showed where the "hottest" jungle was located.

"When we struck a town he excused himself and went another way because he said it wouldn't look well for me to be coming into town with an ugly fellow like him."

The funny thing was that a lot of these fellows, after they learned they could talk me, would put aside their slang and rough English and then I would find they were educated men. Some of them were school teachers out for a lark. Some were business men who had had domestic trouble and determined to cut loose from everything.

Miss Losch is giving herself three years to see the world. She says she can hike it at the rate of 40 miles a day.

"Of course," she says, "I might want until I'm old and see it from a Pullman window but I don't think you ever learn anything that way. I want to get my education while I'm going to go all the way around the world."

YVONNE LOSCH

At the end of that time I expect to have added three or four other languages and to have the best education in the world."

NOVEL WAY TO GIVE SHRINERS ALL INFORMATION

When the Shriners of Danville who are going to Washington to attend the great convention of the Mystical Shrine on June 5th, 6th, and 7th, wish to obtain information as to the location of temples, where delegates are stopping, and other data as to the time of parades and the various activities of the convention, they will be able to obtain this information from any telephone by simply asking the operator for "Shrine."

This special temporary central office equipped with special information switch boards which have been provided by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company for the occasion. This central office, according to Burdett Stryker, Vice President and General Manager of the company, will have lines connecting to all the chairmen of the Shrine Temple, 1223 Shrine Committee, visiting temple headquarters, the Shrine Registration Bureau, the Shrine Housing Bureau, the parking locations where many of the temples will be housed, and other points in connection with the Shrine convention. The addresses of visiting Shriners can be obtained from the Registration Bureau which can be called through the Shrine exchange.

This special Shrine central office will substantially aid the telephone company in taking care of the extraordinary demand for telephone service during the convention. It has been variously estimated that between 350,000 and 450,000 people will visit Washington during Shrine week. Normally the telephone company handles about 400,000 calls a day. It is expected that the convention will make it necessary to handle more than 600,000 calls a day.

In view of this heavy increase in the use of the service, the telephone company is urging that telephone conversations be made as brief as possible in order to prevent undue congestion of the service.

When he was asked for his reason he stated that he had been made a business offer which promised him more return than the treasurer's office would pay and that he thought it was to his best interest to step down and out.

Do we ever get too old to enjoy the thrills of a circus? The echo answers "no, we never do." The memory of our first circus experience lingers when many other memories have faded into the dim and shadowy past. The performance of these wonderful persons as perhaps has never before been attempted, combined with a pretty "Pierrot and Pierrotine". A contortionist, whose body is as flexible as a piece of India rubber, will do blood curdling stunts. A ventriloquist, a professional at the art, will mystify the audience. In fact, there will be such a curious gathering of performers in such unique and startling exhibitions as perhaps were never seen before in any clime.

Come early to avoid the rush. So keen has the interest already become it would look as if the big rooms at the Y. W. C. A. will scarcely hold the eager crowd. On Tuesday, May 29th from 7:30 p. m. until 10:30 p. m. this marvellous exhibition be given.

The proceeds of the Circus are to help swell the Business Girls' Council Conference fund.

JOINT RECITAL BEGINS FINALS AT AVERETT

The commencement exercises of Averett College were begun last night in the college auditorium with a joint recital by the advanced pupils in voice, piano, violin and expression. A beautiful display of the home economics department was also a noteworthy feature of the program. The exhibition included studies in oil and water colors and garments designed and made by the department.

The seniors of the school will celebrate class night this evening and have prepared an interesting program for the occasion. Sunday morning the baccalaureate sermon will be preached at the First Baptist church by Dr. Roy L. Harlan.

On Monday night the graduating exercises will be held in the auditorium. Dr. Gortner's address will deliver the literary address. President J. P. Craft will also make a brief address to the members of the graduating class. Announcements will be made regarding the faculty for the session of 1923-24.

Doing the housework for the average American family is some task, and many women lose their health in so doing. If you, as a housewife, are troubled with backache, irritability, are easily tired out, or irritable, or have other disagreeable ailments caused by some weakness, give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. Let it help you.

Keeneville, N. Y.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly for the good it has done me. I was so much troubled with female weakness I could hardly do any work. I saw your advertisement in the paper, and read it to my husband. He said, 'You had better try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,' so I bought six bottles, and by taking it I am not troubled as I was. I am gaining strength and getting fleshy. My female troubles have vanished and I have never felt so well. The Liver Pills are the best I ever took. If you think my letter will encourage other sufferers you have my permission to use it as an advertisement."—Mrs. SARAH BLAISE, Box 177, Keeneville, N. Y.

CAST OF SCHOOL PLAY DRILLED

Preparations are well advanced and rehearsals are polishing up the fine points in dialogue and stage business for the presentation of the Senior Class play of the Danville High School a feature of the commencement program of more than usual interest.

The bill selected is a rival of the famous old Sheridan comedy, 'The Rivals', with its fine opportunity for clean and clever humor and enjoyable comedy. It is a rather pretentious undertaking for a high school class but the cast is being carefully drilled in lines and stage business.

Mrs. H. Leigh who has had part in the direction of other plays by the school.

'The Rivals' is to be put on at the Majestic theatre on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, the proceeds to be used in defraying expenses of the preparation and presentation meeting during the year, and it is hoped that a snug balance will remain with which to give an impetus to student activities next year.

What is characterized by the faculty committee as an 'all-star cast' has been selected. Such well known characters as Sir Anthony Absolute, Sir Lucius O'Rigger, Bob Acres, Lydia Langford and Mrs. Mat. appear in this eighteenth century comedy formerly played with great success by Joe Jefferson and his sons, Joe and William, and by other great actors.

The senior class which consists of fifty-two or 33 well known boys and girls will attend the performance as a body and will occupy the 'bald-headed' row and other near-front rows.

AMERICAN'S COMMENT ON DANVILLE DEVICE
In a recent number of the Scientific American an interesting comment was printed among the notes of new devices and inventions as to one by Mrs. Maggie Brown Conway, wife of P. F. Conway of this city. Reference is to the device to which reference was made by this paper a year or more ago, and of which this organ of scientists and inventors says:

"Annotated figure—Maggie B. Conway, 833 Main street, Danville, Va. This invention relates to animated figures and has for its object to provide a figure adapted to partake of original and unusual movements and actions to attract attention and to amuse observers, whereby it may be used either as an advertising device or toy. The device is simple, durable in construction and easy and inexpensive to manufacture."

WINSTON SALEM, May 25.—After leading the Twins here this afternoon for eight and one half innings Danville first was tied by the locals in the last of the ninth when four runs were made and then beaten out in the tenth. Both teams played indifferent ball. Danville making three errors and Winston four.

Ellington hit for Allen, singled filling the bases. At this critical stage of the game Hengehold came across with a double and Winkler and Black scored. Fuhrey hit to right and Ellington and Hengehold scored. Carter popped up to Overton.

Japan's Chances For Tennis Cup

By LAWRENCE PERRY.
(Copyright, 1923, by The Bee)
NEW YORK, May 25.—With the announcement today that the Australian Davis Cup team will consist of J. O. Anderson, J. B. Hawkes, W. B. Schlesinger and I. D. McInnes, tennis experts, believe that Japan has an excellent chance of coming through in the preliminary matches of the American Davis Cup group. This opinion is strengthened by the possibility that Anderson at the last moment may find it impossible to leave with the team, which is due to sail from Sydney on May 31.

If, however, he does lead the Anti-Japan team, his strength will hardly compensate for the absence of Gerald Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood—Patterson the great singles player who has not yet attained his peak, and Wood a fine partner in the doubles as he exists. And if Anderson doesn't come Australia will be weak, comparatively speaking.

Of the Japan outfit the chances are despite the absence of Kunitake, that it will be strong. Kashio and Shimizu who have been practicing in this country have been joined by the present champion of Japan, Fukuda, Shimizu speaks in highest praise of his ability. The chances are good that his game will be pretty much on the level with that of his colleagues.

In such case it would seem that Australia would need the best she has to qualify to meet the American defenders of the International Trophy.

Kinks-o' the Kinks

Has Mike Brady, who is now located in Detroit, ever won a national open championship? If so, in what year, and please name the runner-up and give the scores of the first two players?

Mike Brady has never won a national open, although he has several times been runner-up, only to have the honor slip away through some tough break in luck.

In what year did Chick Evans win his first western amateur championship?

Evans first turned the trick of winning a western amateur in 1919, from Albert Seckel, 1 up. He has repeated many times since.

I AM not training any harder for my fight with Crigui on June 2 than I ever trained before. I am taking longer to do it, but the actual training is no more strenuous. For the past two months I have taken light road work at 6:30 every morning. I follow this with a nap.

Then a light luncheon, very light, and at 3 p. m. some gym work, with a route on two with either Al Ziemer or Tommy McLaughlin or a youngster named Owen O'Malley, whom I have taken under my wing. A brisk walk at night, and to bed at 9 o'clock.

That doesn't sound exactly strenuous, does it? But it certainly gets me in condition, and it will any day.

Two years of inactivity has had no ill effects on my system. It has resulted only in the necessity of lengthening my period of training.

What of Crigui? Up to four weeks ago I trained intermittently. That is, I'd motor to Cleveland every now and then, and the past four weeks it has been nothing but work. I put Owen in charge of the camp, and a strict guardian he has been. I'll say it!

What of Crigui? I don't know much about him. I came near meeting him during my European trip a year ago, but the bout fell through. He probably is good, but he has been fighting as long as I, and is nearly as old. However, I count him a hard-fighter.

I'm never afraid of the fighter who looks fierce. I don't accuse Dundee of having cauliflower ears, but I merely make a point. It is a fighter who is disgraced, it is a sign he got that way because of a lack of knowledge of protection himself.

Friends want to know how I think my next match is coming out. I can't tell them, except to say that would be foolish to go in half-expecting to lose. But, as I have always said, you never can tell. And I wouldn't advise a friend, anyone, to do anything in connection with a fight.

May Fight Both. I want to fight both Crigui and Dundee this summer, and eliminate the strongest contenders. Then the future?

I don't know. While I'm in trim, I would be foolish not to take on any lack of knowledge of protection himself.

Dempsey Hard At Work For His Bout

(Special to The Bee.)

GREAT FALLS, Mont., May 25.—Five minutes of bag punching and rope skipping preceded six hectic rounds of boxing which marked Jack Dempsey's training today to condition himself for his 15 round bout against Tommy Gibbons at Shelby, July 4. The champion's camp at Great Falls Park was crowded with spectators, including many women.

At the end of the workout this afternoon Dempsey appeared fresh, his wind was good and he sprinted for the showers like a deer.

Harry Drake, British heavyweight, who was knocked silly by the champion yesterday, hopped into the ring today wearing a heavy head gear which added to the absorbing six minutes of punishment. Jack Burke and George Godfrey, colored, Atlantic Coast heavies, each went two rounds with Dempsey.

This morning the champion took a six mile run as usual and later strolled down to a bathing beach along the Missouri river. He said later he would try swimming in the cold mountain water, if permitted to by his trainers.

GREAT SEASON ON FOR TENNIS PLAYERS

NEW YORK, May 25.—Youthful tennis players this year confront the greatest season of activity they have ever had. Nearly seventy important boys and junior tournament, including state sectional and national championships, have been sanctioned by the United States Lawn Tennis Association over a five months' period and future Davis Cup talent will have plenty of opportunity to develop.

The age limits for competitive classes of competition are: Boys, under 15; Juniors, under 18; and inter-scholastics, under 21.

One thing is sure—I'm out of business for good. It is going to be the fight game or one of its allied branches for good. By the latter, I refer to a class for business men with a month's stay out on the farm. I'll make my farm attractive, with a dancing pavilion and so forth, and intend to settle down in the future or a life close to nature just as I've always done.

And believe me, folks, you'd better, too. It's great! You cannot beat nature!

EMPLOYEES BUY MUCH OIL STOCK

CHICAGO, May 25.—Three years hence the employees of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) will be the largest single group of stockholders collectively, and will own more stock than any other individual or collective group of stockholders of the company. It is the employees' plan to purchase stock in the next three years as they have in the last two. This announcement was made today by the company in commenting on the result of the plan during the two years of its existence.

The announcement says that of the 27,000 stockholders, 10,000 are now employees and have purchased stock under the plan, which provides that for every dollar an employee puts up for the purchase of stock the company will add 50 cents to the employee's credit in the purchase, providing, however, that no employee can purchase more than an amount equal to 20 per cent. of his salary.

As soon as an amount sufficient to buy one share of stock is reached the purchase is made and dividends to the employee begin. At the end of five years all of the stock purchased in this manner is delivered to the employee.

A few concrete examples of how the plan works are interesting. Two years ago an office boy earning $50 a month contributed $10 of this monthly wage to purchasing stock. Today he has nine shares and with the small cash balance of $12.50 he has to his credit $575. His net profit is $340.

Another employee whose salary is $500 a month put in $100 to the purchase of stock. He has now 10 shares, which have a value of $5,911. His net profit for the two years is $3,951.

POINCARÉ IS GIVEN CHEERS ON ENTRY INTO CHAMBER

(By The Associated Press.) PARIS, May 25.—The Chamber of Deputies today took the first occasion since Premier Poincaré's attempted resignation to express their approval of his policies. When M. Poincaré entered the chamber for the continuation of the debate on the appropriation for the Ruhr occupation cost, nearly the entire body rose and cheered. The demonstration was interpreted as the answer of the chamber to the Senate's action on the Cahen case yesterday, which prompted M. Poincaré to proffer his resignation to the president.

After the ovation the debate dragged on in the midst of the general impatience of the deputies who were seemingly ready to vote on the money asked for. Political exigencies, however, seemed to require that some of the political leaders, such as Edouard Perriot and André Tardieu, have their say. The high court, representing the views of the radical party, made the sharpest attack on the government's policy in the Ruhr yet heard in Parliament, but expressions of approval of his views came only from the radical and socialist benches.

The debate went over again until next Tuesday, when M. Tardieu will have the floor. The general opinion is that a large majority is certain for the cabinet.

The government is standing by its determination to prosecute Marcel Cachin and other Communists charged with acts designed to jeopardize the state. At a cabinet meeting to-night presided over by President Millerand, was agreed that the case against the Communists should be referred back to the regular judicial channels since the Senate, sitting as a high court, had declared itself without jurisdiction to try the Communists. Profiting by the experience gained through the action of the Senate the cabinet instructed the minister of justice to prepare a plan for re-organization of the high court in a constitutional amendment so as to avoid such a dangerous situation which was brought yesterday.

PROGRAM FOR BAPTISTS WON ENDORSEMENT

(By The Associated Press.) ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 25.—A future denominational program for Northern Baptists presented at the annual convention of the denomination here today won enthusiastic endorsement from fundamentalists and progressives alike.

This program, which involves certain marked changes in the working of the machinery of the denomination, was presented by J. F. Vichet, dean of Colgate University, chairman of the committee which has been engaged in consideration of the problem for the last year. The program itself, if accepted, is to be entered upon in May, 1924, at the close of the five years' period of the new world movement. Its adoption will not be ratified until the 3,000 delegates assembled here have had opportunity to refer the matter to the local churches from which they come.

Applauding the convention hall when Dr. J. C. Masses, of Boston, leader of the fundamentalist forces, expressed his approval of the proposed denominational program and his desire to cooperate in it.

Among the important changes which the new denominational program recommends are:

Increased emphasis upon the place and function of the local church, instead of the centralizing body of the denomination; more freedom to participating organizations of the denomination; an annual financial objective rather than those for a longer period; freedom in designation of gifts to the denomination.

McADOO WILL BE NEXT PRESIDENT OF COUNTRY

(By The Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, May 25.—Election of William G. McAdoo to the presidency next year was predicted in a statement today by Senator King, Democrat, Utah. He added, however, that if the election were held now Henry Ford probably would win, and concluded that if "real" prosperity should arrive President Harding might be re-elected.

GIRL SOLD TO GYPSIES, HELD FOR LARCENY

NEWARK, N. J., May 25.—Ruby Mitchell, aged 19, was turned over to the Rahway police in Newark tonight on a charge of the larceny of $960, the money she had stolen from the Captain Seabold of the Newark police that she had run away from a band of gypsies because they treated her brutally. She said she had been with them for four years, ever since her father, Jacob Mitchell of Detroit, Mich., sold her to the gypsies for $4.

000. The irony charge against her she told the police, was trumped up and was merely an effort of the gypsies to get her back again. The Detroit police sent word that they were unable to find any one answering the description of the young woman's father.

SEVENTEEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL WINS FIFTY-YARD RACE HONOLULU, May 25.—Lillie Bowmer, 17-year-old school girl, weighing approximately 100 pounds, last night swam the fastest 50 yards ever covered by a woman and broke the world's tank record by four-fifths of a second. Her time was 28 seconds flat.

JOSEPH C. GREW OFFERS SERVICE

(By The Associated Press.) LAUSANNE, May 25.—After having consulted with the allied leaders at the Near East conference, Joseph C. Grew, the American minister to Switzerland, who is acting as observer at the conference, tonight called successively on Ismet Pasha and M. Venizelos, respectively heads of the Turkish and Greek delegations, and offered good offices in an endeavor to reach a solution of the reparations problem, which has brought the conference to a critical stage.

Mr. Grew laid stress on the urgency for moderation by both sides to the conference. His earnest plea that neither side act hastily seemed to impress M. Venizelos and Ismet who expressed appreciation of the minister's offer of assistance.

NEWSPAPER MAN DIES

Two meet death in plane crash

(By The Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, May 25.—Major Thomas Duncan, army air service and Irvin H. Rupp, a civilian employee of the militia bureau, met death today at Bolling Field in the crash of an airplane, in which they had just started a flight. The machine, piloted by Major Duncan, had just taken off and at a height of 200 feet went into a tail spin and crashed to earth. The wreckage immediately caught fire and both men were burned beyond recognition before those who had witnessed the crash could reach them. Major Duncan was 41 years old and was the son of the late Brigadier General Thomas Duncan. Rupp came here from Pennsylvania. Both were married and made their homes here.

"Kerosening"

Probably Keeps Carbon Deposits From Baking On Too Hard.

TIME WAS WHEN SQUIRTING KEROSENE into the cylinders once in a while was considered an effective preventative against the accumulation of carbon deposits, but sad experience long ago proved this idea to be too good to be true. Nevertheless it is still pretty generally believed that occasional kerosene treatments are a good thing for an engine and car manufacturers are almost unanimous in recommending its use. The usual directions suggest that a small quantity, say a tablespoonful or less, be injected into each cylinder through the petcock or spark-plug hole, when the engine is somewhat warm and left there overnight, the claim being that deposited carbon is thereby softened and loosened, so that it is later carried out with the exhaust. The kerosene which runs down past the pistons is supposed to prevent the rings from becoming gummed in their grooves. Sometimes the recommended method is to idle the engine and allow kerosene to be sucked through the engine freely, by pouring it into the carburetor air-intake, the claim being made that valve faces, seats and stems are thereby cleaned of deposits which may have collected upon them. When a lot of kerosene is put into an engine, its effect on the oil should not be forgotten—the best time for a heavy kerosening being just before the oil is to be changed. A mixture of two-thirds kerosene and one-third alcohol, well shaken together, is considered by some to be superior to kerosene alone and it is certain that alcohol has considerable value as a decarbonizer.

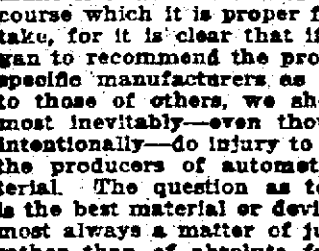

BRAKE LININGS

J. J. McG. asks: What is the best make of brake lining to use on my car?

Answer: We are sorry that we cannot answer your question, but it is the established policy of "Motorist Service," which no exception is made, to avoid recommending any particular make of car, accessory devices or material, to any correspondent. We think that a little consideration will make it clear that this is the only course which it is proper for us to take, for it is clear that if we began to recommend the products of specific manufacturers as superior to those of others, we should almost inevitably—even though unintentionally—do injury to some of the producers of automotive material. The question as to which is the best material or device is almost always a matter of judgment rather than of absolute fact, and our judgment is by no means infallible. The only suggestion that we can make—and one which we believe will give you good results—is that you use the same make of brake lining which is used by the manufacturers of your car. You can readily find out from the service station of this make which material they are employing.

FINISH IN BAD CONDITION

G. H. writes: The finish of my car is badly cracked, or rather cracked. Is it advisable to remove the varnish in order to re-finish so?

THIN OIL, OR THICK

W. G. writes: Certain lubricating oil companies state that this oil is the correct grade for Summer and Winter alike, but the instructions on the can for a car calls for a medium grade of oil for Summer use. What do you advise? A friend of mine who has used thin oil in an engine like mine found that the oil lever rose from crankcase condensation of fuel, and some of the spark plugs fouled badly.

Answer: By all means follow the recommendations of the manufacturer of your car rather than any advice given by the oil manufacturer. Our preference is in a general way, toward the use of oil rather than thick, rather than toward the use of oil which is possibly a little thin, as we believe that if there is to be an error in either direction it should be in that of providing a lubricant which is capable of separating the wearing surfaces, rather than in supplying one which lacks the body required to prevent metallic contact under severe conditions. Many users of cars who have continuously warmed garages find that they can use medium oil throughout the year, and the manufacturers who suggest the use of thin oil during cold weather, in many instances do so to take care of the owners who keep their cars in very cold regions.

Ask Bootleggers to Surrender Stills--And Six Do It

COLUMBIA HEIGHTS, Mo., May 26.—Judge H. Z. Mendow and Chief of Police A. C. Elsenpeter must be the combined reincarnation of old King Solomon.

Otherwise how could they have teased five honest-to-goodness bootleggers into giving up their stills?

Well here's the story from the very beginning.

Columbia Heights is just outside of Minneapolis and in time may be a suburb of that thriving city. Judge Mendow dispenses justice to those Chief Elsenpeter thinks need it. To-gether they sort of regulate the morals of the village.

"Now, chief," said Mendow one day, "there's getting to be too much of this here bootlegging business around."

The chief squinted so witnesses saw, and said that well, mebbe—mebbe.

Chief suggests, "Let's clean 'em out," the judge suggested.

FANTASTIC GOWNS WORN BY BARBARA LA MARR
Through the smother setting of "Trifling Women," Rex Ingram's strange story, of which he has made a film production, at the Broadway Theatre, moves the brilliant figure of Zarela, the fortune teller, the only woman in the picture, played by the beautiful Barbara La Marr. Against the background of the story, Rex Ingram has made her a spot of radiant color, garbed in an infinity of hues, draped in exotic silks and satins, rich velvet and brocade.

It is estimated that upon the fifteen gowns worn by Barbara La Marr in the production over $20,000 has been spent, bringing the cost of each gown to more than a thousand dollars.

Four dressmakers were kept busy throughout the two months of production and because of the intricacies of design and pattern were barely able to keep pace with the demand.

The story of "Trifling Women" takes place in Paris in the days of the Great War. Thus the going is ordered by Rex Ingram, must be made to reflect the exquisite lines and skill with which a Parisienne courtier would have incorporated in them.

Each gown upon completion, was paraded before Rex Ingram on a mannequin. With him rested the final word of approval or rejection.

"Trifling Women" was written, adapted and directed by Rex Ingram. In the cast are, in addition to Miss La Marr—Ramon Navarro, Lewis Stone, Edward Connelley, Fomeroy Cannon, Hughie Mack, George Poulcet and others. A novel bit is obtained through the remarkable acting of Joe Martin, a highly intelligent actor.

SHORTAGE OF GARAGES
ST. PAUL, May 25.—There is today an acute shortage of garages in this city and permits for the erection of 725 buildings for garage purposes have been issued in the last four months. The buildings range in value usually from $200 to $1,000.

BEAUTIFUL VIVACIOUS JACQUELINE de Severac, daughter of a distinguished French nobleman, is a lively, happy, every woman. She ignores to jilt him when her shrewd father has manuscript of his latest book, the x Ingram's production for Metro, roadway Theatre on Monday and Tuesday.

But the judge didn't waver. "Why," he exclaimed, "the chief, as a happy thought struck him, 'couldn't we ask 'em to bring in their outfits and allow 'em to go scot free if they did, but if they didn't, soak 'em good and hard. Got me?'"

The judge got him, thus showing his wisdom in accepting a good suggestion. The two then plastered big signs reading like this:

"Dear Mr. Bootlegger: We are going out to get you and your firewater. But first we are going to give you a fighting chance. Bring your stills and moonshine to the Columbia Heights fire station before Saturday, May 19, and surrender them and you won't be touched. Beware, though, if you don't do this!"

TY COBB HAS MADE ANOTHER RECORD
(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, May 25.—Ty Cobb today crossed another notable baseball record having scored more runs in his major league career than any other player in the history of baseball.
His home run in yesterday's game established his total record in eighteen years and five weeks of play at 1,741. Hans Wagner, in 20 years on the diamond, has scored 1,740.

Mute Molds Harding Bust

EUGENE E. HANNAN

By HARRY B. HUNT
WASHINGTON, May 25.—Eugene E. Hannan, deaf and dumb sculptor of Washington, against has scored being one of the prize-winners among 50 contestants submitting designs for medals to be awarded victors in water sports to be staged here during the Shriner's convention in June.
Although unable either to speak or hear, Hannan perfected himself in his art by study both in Paris and Madrid. He found life much simpler there, he said in a pencil-and-paper conversation—as he could converse with the average Latin by gestures.
Hannan's bust of President Harding, as a noble of the Mystic Shrine, is declared by those who have seen it to be one of the best likenesses of the chief executive any artist has executed.

Minutemen of Harding in a tasseled red fez, and of Uncle Sam, decked out in full Shriner regalia, as host to the convention, are expected to be among the most popular souvenirs for visiting Shriners to carry back home with them.

RUM RUNNERS IN JAIL IN NORFOLK

(By The Associated Press)
NORFOLK, May 25.—William L. Burwell alias William E. Baker, self-styled "second in command of the Atlantic Coast Rum Fleet," his wife and Rex D. Sheldon, all of New York were arrested at a Norfolk hotel today by federal prohibition agents on warrants charging them with unlawfully conspiring to smuggle and transfer intoxicating liquors into the United States. They were held under guard at the Atlantic hotel pending further investigation by the authorities, who expect to round up members of a gigantic liquor smuggling syndicate with important branches in New York, Canada, London, Scotland and the Bermudas. The prisoners, according to federal officers, submitted statements confessing their connection with the organization behind the rum fleet that has been operating the Virginia Capes for the past week.

REFER DEBT SETTLEMENT

DETAILS BACK TO LONDON

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 25.—The British Embassy has found it necessary to refer back to London the latest proposals relative to the British debt settlement, which it was said today will involve a delay perhaps of a week or more before the final stages of the negotiations can be reached. It was stated no difference upon any important phase of the settlement had arisen but that a desire to make the language of the document fit both British and American law beyond any question of doubt was responsible for the delay.

"Trifling Women" is pronounced by press and public to be the greatest dramatic classic of the year Monday and Tuesday at the Broadway.

A Girl's Amazing Death Pact With a Man She Never Knew

He Wrote: "At High Noon I Could Slip Out Quietly on This Great Adventure." And the Beautiful Barnard Girl Embraced His Tragic Ideal at That Very Time.

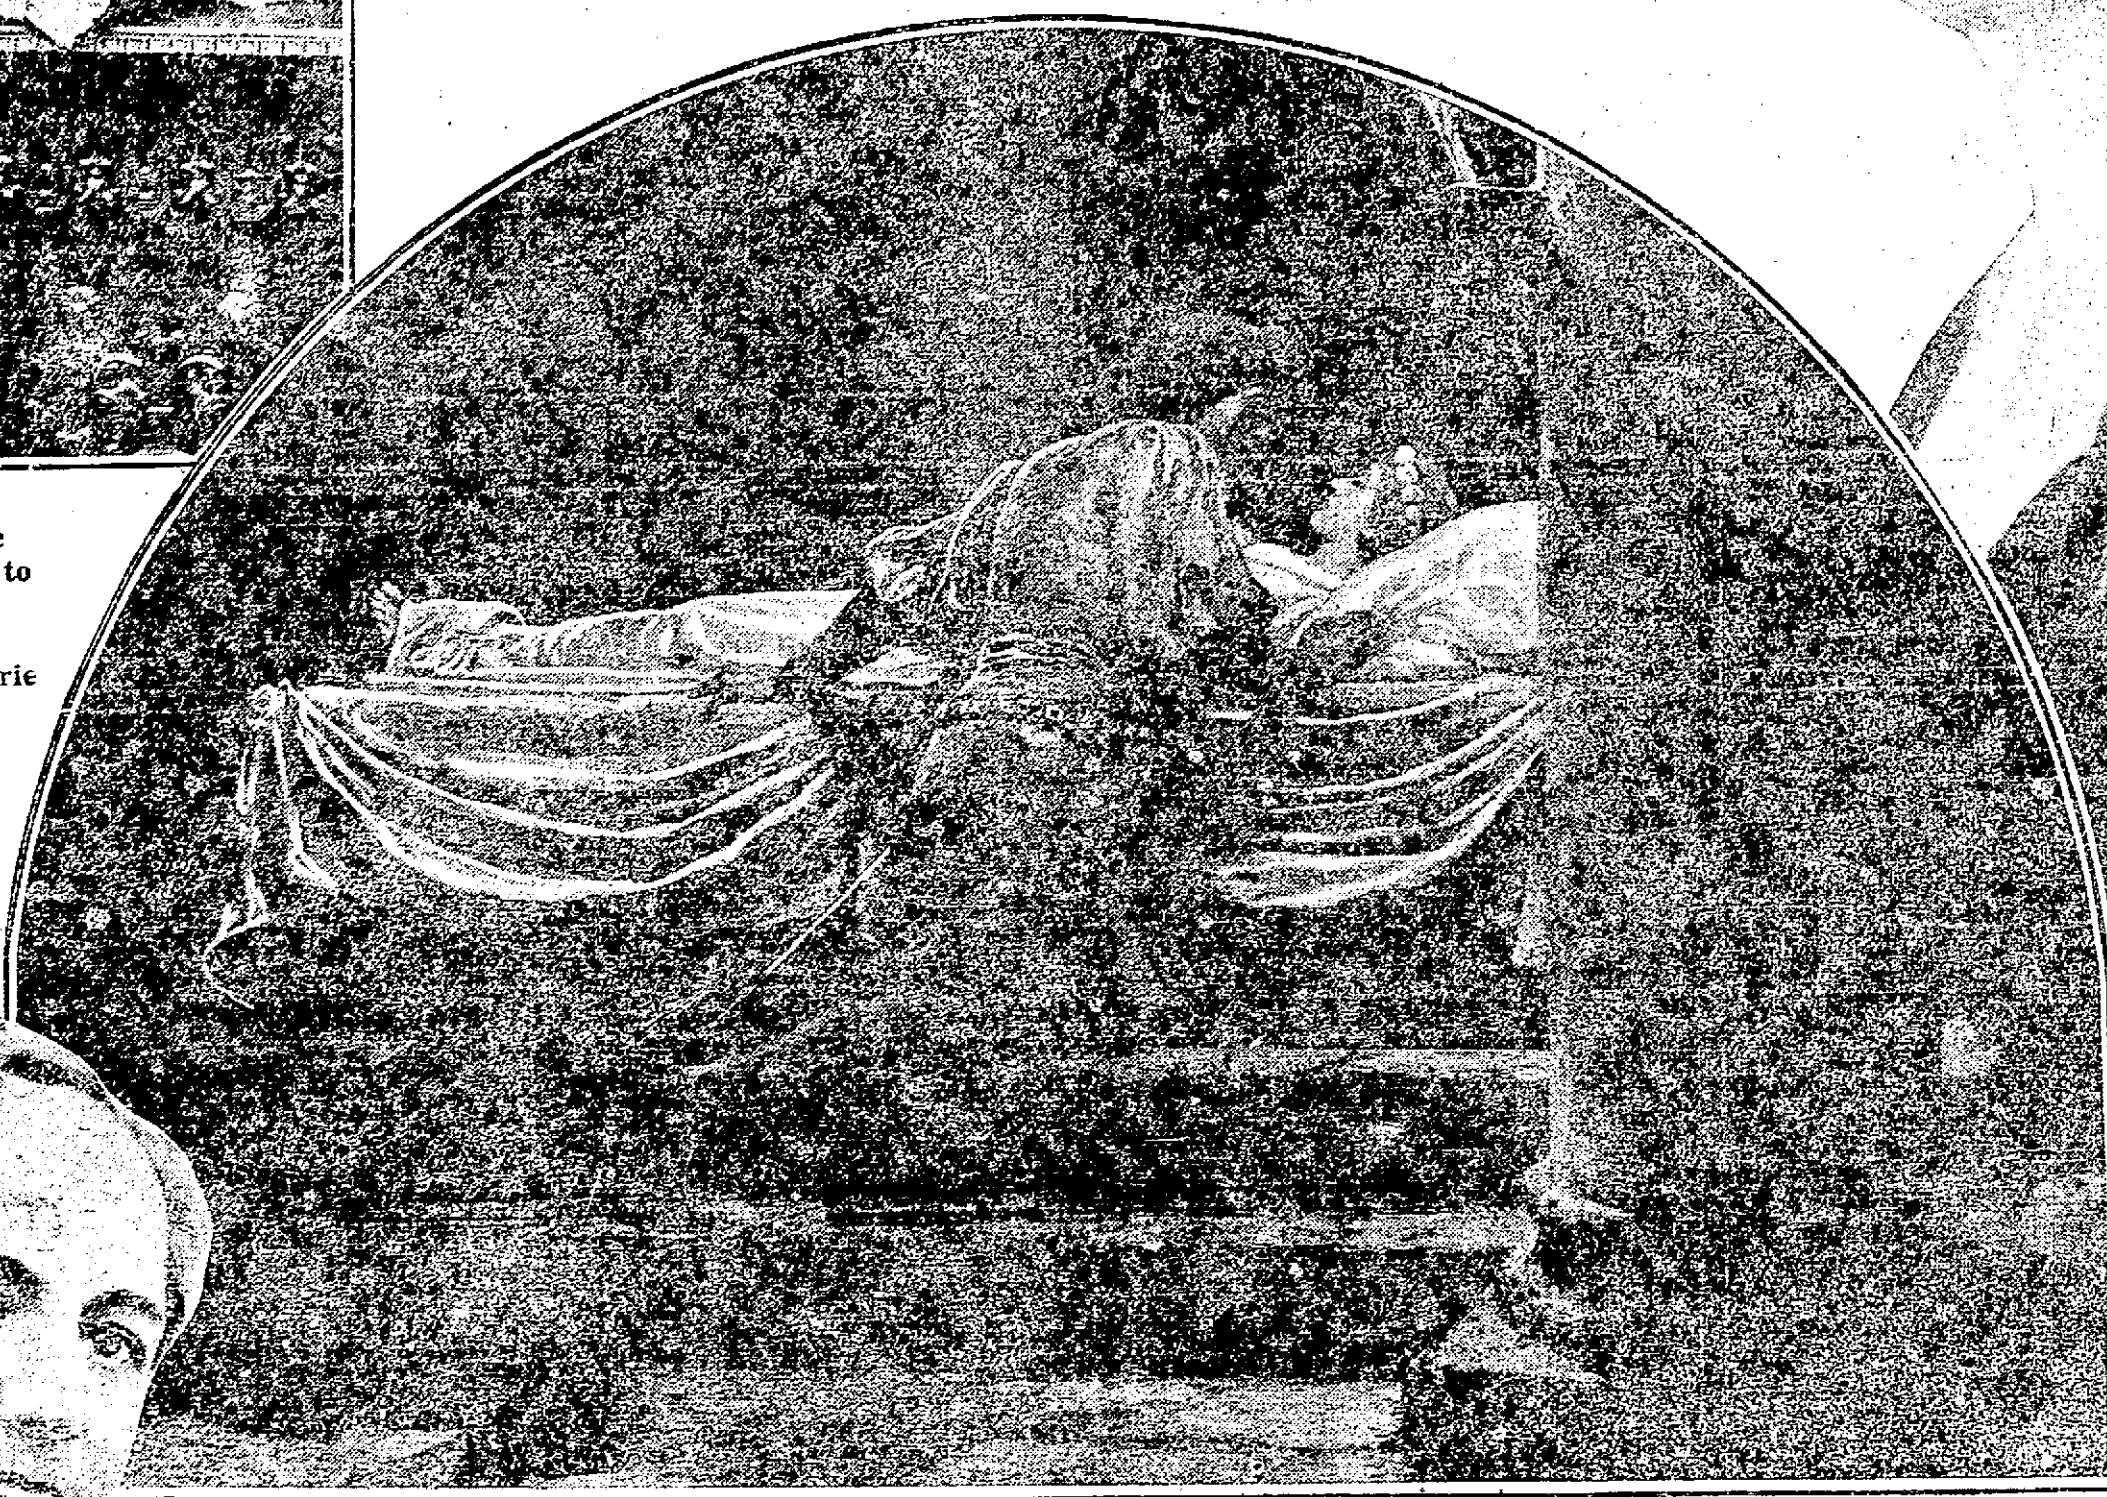

Marie Bloomfield, a "Healthy, Vivacious and Brilliant Student," Was Overwhelmed by the Dark Philosophies of Barbellion and Committed Suicide, as He Had Often Wanted to Do.

Marie Bashkirtseff, Whose Tragic Life Story Helped to Forge the Chain Which Held Marie Bloomfield. "We Are Identical! Oh, Marie Bashkirtseff!" Wrote Barbellion, Melancholy Young English Naturalist. Fascinated by Her He Wrote the Journal Which Led the Barnard Student to a "Rendezvous with Death."

Romeo and Juliet. Who Were Irresistibly Lured by Their Conception of Death's Beauty as Their Romance Neared Its Tragic Climax. The Painting Above Shows Romeo, Who Discovers the Sleeping Juliet and Thinks Her Dead.

By Winifred Van Duzer

TERROR is the normal reaction of life to death. Normal? Well, usual at least. Terror of the unknown, never touched by logical reasoning concerning existence beyond the grave, or by religious reassurance of happiness to come, or by the sure knowledge that all must share the terrific mystery. Human shrinking from elements fiercely antagonistic to the warm, commonplace habits of blood and flesh. Horror of a loneliness vast as the spaces between the stars. Yet strange souls have found beauty in the darkness, and exquisite peace in the silence. Led by love or disillusion or perhaps by a weariness with the limitations of life, their feet have stood before the "door which has no key."

Paola and Francesca da Rimini. Who Preferred to Be Miserable Together in Hades Rather Than Separated in Heaven. Dante and Virgil Stand on the Edge of the Inferno and Watch the Lovers Whirl by.

They have wooed Death, these strange souls, as a man woos a maid. They have given themselves in the most incredible of mystic rites, uniting with eternity in a kiss that left their bodies clay. Have their spirits found what they sought? Who shall say? "Not one returns to tell us of the road—which to discover we must travel, too!"

Thus have the melancholy lovers of history and tradition gone beyond the Great Terror and exchanged life, empty because it no longer held the loved one, for the unknown. Sappho, princess of passion, threw herself into the sea, that her soul might be released to search for that of her lover, unfaithful in life, but faithful—perhaps—in death. Romeo and Juliet welcomed the darkness where, so each believed, waited the soul of the other. Orpheus braved the shades of Hell itself to call forth with his song the immortal part of his Eurydice. And almost succeeded in conquering the grave!

Even beyond the grave we have a picture of one yearning spirit awaiting another. Did not the Blessed Damsel force the bars of Heaven that she might lean athwart the wall to follow the fortunes of her beloved, still on earth?

In a square little room of a college dormitory, hung with pennants, decked with the photographs that every school-girl draws about her, scattered with books marked and interlined, and with manuscripts written in hurried, student hand, a girl of eighteen, toward the Dark Figure, creeping into its chill robes as if they were the arms of an earthly sweetheart.

Ecstasy she found there, and day by day she went among her classmates wrapped in her own mysticism, a dreaming light in her eyes, a smile on her lips. Her mind soared in realms of the abstract and her teachers marveled at her brilliance.

She was a normal girl in the classroom and on the campus; rather matter-of-fact as her friends knew her, given to high ambition and lust of achievement. Some day she would discover a principle—a something to make the way easier for humanity-at-large. Keenness of brain made her a class leader; charm of personality made her a favorite. And when she withdrew from groups gathered socially of evenings, it was said "now she is going to study." But afterward it was remembered that Marie Bloomfield, junior at Barnard College, maintained her high standing without study. She was one of the rare students with a photographic brain, acquiring learning as a negative acquires impressions.

Marie withdrew from her friends and their bright interest in living because she held rendezvous with Death. Not the reluctant, bitter rendezvous of the ailing body and the tired brain. She was strong and well and alert. But the rendezvous of love which may not be denied.

Over and over she read the words, beautiful or terrible, or sad, that others, who have loved the presence of Death or feared it, have written. Keats and Shelley were her constant companions; the misanthropic musings of Hamlet darkened her thoughts. And above all there was the journal of W. N. P. Barbellion—the sick Bruce Frederick Cummings, English naturalist and author, who died slowly and terribly before the horror of creeping paralysis.

What did this charming girl of nineteen find of joy in these morbid hours? According to the word she left, they brought her the belief that life is futile and disappointing. As compared to the reality of it she saw the end and what lies beyond as beautiful, thrilling, transcendental. Somewhere past the limitations of flesh and blood, perhaps, waited the spirit of Barbellion, who would understand her dissatisfaction and her cravings. Only a gesture, slight as turning her hand, separated them. And beyond that gesture lay what to her was the lure of the Great Adventure. Did she indeed make a death pact—most amazing of all agreements—with this man she never knew?

On a morning of resolution, Marie went to the square little room and locked the door. She wrote a hasty farewell letter to the wife of Barbellion a few lines from Keats's "Ode to a Nightingale," a line from Hamlet. Toward noon, at the hour when Barbellion would have chosen to go out by his own hand had he possessed the courage she summoned Death. Their union was complete, finally.

Did the soul of Marie indeed go to find the spirit of Barbellion? Did the "Journal" left by the egotistical young naturalist, with its introduction by H. G. Wells, and its queer, despairing philosophy, sway a living girl to follow him beyond the grave? Dr. Gregory Stagnell, eminent psychologist and editor of the New York Medical Journal, says it did not:

"Some might be so 'affected'; others could not. That is fixed. The person who wants death is the one who must get away from life. We encounter that morbid state in people who find difficulty in adjusting themselves to their surroundings. As far as we can see, Marie Bloomfield was making progress in her surroundings, but her final act implies that there was something buried within her, a hidden self that she couldn't adjust to reality. She had a serious inner conflict. She was tied to the woman she wrote to—the wife of Barbellion. She was at the age when girls form morbid attachments for women teachers and girl friends.

"We find a great deal of preoccupation with death among talented people—they can't meet life because of inner conflicts that are so strong. And they are talented because of these conflicts. The talented person is always neurotic."

Pope wrote of the mind that welcomes death and calmly passed away. Beaudelaire, in his "Fleurs de Mal," gloats in ecstatic fashion over death and its most unpleasant aspects. In his "Journal" Barbellion wrote in quotation, "Life is a cagotry with death that wears me—too sure of the amour." And out of his own strange self-revelations he sets down: "I sit in the theatre of my own life and watch the drama of my own history preceding to its close. Pray God the curtain falls at the right moment lest the play drag on into some long and tedious anticlimax."

It is interesting, by the way, to know that Marie Bashkirtseff, the beautiful young Russian artist whose career in Paris was cut short by untimely illness, furnished in her "Journal" something the same inspiration to Barbellion that the English naturalist gave Marie Bloomfield. He wrote:

"Oh, Marie Bashkirtseff—we are identical! How we should have hated one another! She feels as I feel. We have the same self-absorption, the same vanity and corroding ambition. She is impressionable, velvety, passionate—ill! So am I!"

Concerning the girl who wooed death, Mrs. Eliza Cummings Abbey, who lives in England, and who sent photographs of herself, her baby daughter, Penelope, and her late husband to Miss Bloomfield, had this to say:

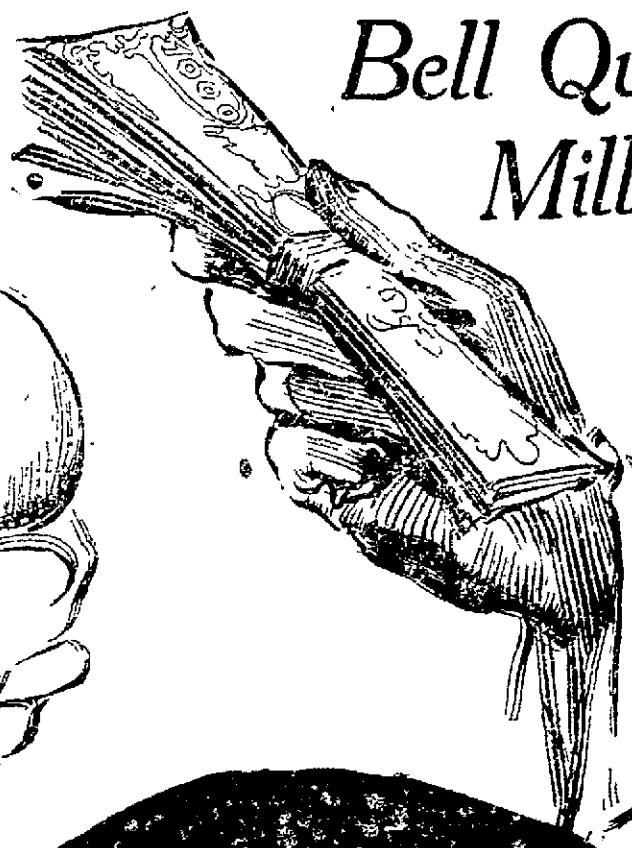

"She seemed in her letters to be a bright girl with a vivid imagination. I replied to her letters and we carried on an occasional correspondence. She seemed to identify us and form an acquaintance in her own mind with us from reading my late husband's diary."

The Astonishing Case of the Five $50,000 Babies

"They Are Not My Children!" Cries the Ghost of "Beautiful Teresa"—"They Are!" Says One California Court and Gives the Bell Quintet Her Million Dollar Fortune.

HERE'S THE PLOT OF THE MILLION-DOLLAR BELL DRAMA

ACT I.—Time: The Days of '49 in San Francisco.

Tom Bell, who just made his pile in the gold country, comes down to San Francisco in search of love and adventure. He meets "Beautiful Teresa," famous character of that early day, and marries her. He builds a palatial home in the fashionable section of the city and installs Teresa, offering her $50,000 for each child she bears him. Teresa brings a negro woman, Mammy Pleasant.

ACT II.—Time: Fifteen Years Later.

"Beautiful Teresa" has brought her husband five children and has collected the $250,000. In the background the sinister Mammy Pleasant dominates the household. She is said to be a voodoo priestess among her own people. Bell has become a national figure in the financial world.

ACT III.—Time: 1923.

Thomas Bell is dead these thirty years and Teresa has just died. Her will is being read and astonishing statements come out. She cuts off the five children without a cent and declares they are not her children. The will outlines how the children were passed off on Bell as his own, but were really procured by Mammy Pleasant so Teresa and the negress could collect the money. Strange circumstances that linked Mammy Pleasant's name with Bell's death are also recalled.

ACT IV.—Time: 1923.

A San Francisco jury gives the Bell children the right to break Teresa's will. The jury decides that Mrs. Bell was insane when she made the will and that her story of the baby hoax cannot be credited. But an appeal gives promise of long-continued litigation.

ROMANCE flourished a gun on another day in this country of ours. Romance bought a burro and a supply of bacon and flour and trekked out of Placerville or Dead Dog or some such to the gold fields of the Golden State. Romance dug and searched and washed dust and made it's pile. Then Romance journeyed into San Francisco and bought a celluloid collar and a piece of cracked ice to deck its red satin scarf and went a-hunting along Barbary Coast for adventure.

Gone the Roaring Forties—buried in the middle of the last century, amid of "our and reckless of human life as they were. Gone old San Francisco. Barbary Coast. Only a watery memory of it now remains in garish, false-front buildings and a few spiritless women who absent-mindedly dance with tourists from Hoboken and Evansville to the groan of mechanical pianos and the swish-swish of half of one per cent. brew.

They are but phantoms of the women who were—the fire-eyed snap-and-sparkle feminine Fortyniners! Not theirs to trouble over fine points of conduct that were or less, universally now dictate the behavior of the country's womanhood. Their code was their own. But that was a boisterous day, so they, too, were unique.

And so a dozen or more of them joined up with a member of the gold-adventuring fraternity in holy bonds of matrimony and thus laid foundation of many of the country's oldest and proudest and most honored First Families.

In the days of Forty-nine the figure of Thomas Bell loomed against the colorful horizon of San Francisco.

A multi-millionaire of America's youth, business partner of the all but J. P. Morgan and James G. Fair, and two generations ago an outstanding figure in the financial world West and East.

James G. Fair provided his pile in a moving picture mirage camp, pick-picking out the nuggets by day and night tripping the light fantastic in the desert halls of the mining town.

Thomas Bell married a girl named "Teresa." History has nothing to say about who she was nor whether she came. She was a figure of the most romantic days this country has known. Only this much is sure. And her companion was a negress who guarded her as probably no American woman ever has been guarded before, Mammy Pleasant, mystic and Voodoo priestess.

The Bell wedding long was remembered by gay coast society. It was large and full of joy like the thin, pale bubbles that rise to the tops of thin, pale crystal-stemmed glasses, according to still lingering tales of it. And directly aching pains had been eased and mundane things restored to an aspect of moment, Bell started on the building of the now famous house on San Francisco's Octavia street—the "House of Mystery," where he was to meet his death.

One court has decided that five children were born to Mrs. Bell during the time she was chaperone of the "House of Mystery." Her own voice, coming out of her grave like a mocking laugh, declares that she lived and died childless. But the riches Thomas Bell began to pile up back in the Roaring Forties, which rested in her hands for a few years after he had passed beyond concern or interest in them, may now belong to Thomas Frederick Bell of San Francisco, the oldest boy; Reginald Bell, banker and rancher of Tulare county; Mrs. Muriel Bell Hoster of Hollister; Mrs. Robina Bell Hessel of San Francisco, and Thomas Bell, the 2-year-old child of the late Eustace Bell, whose guardians are Mrs. Dorothy Bell, widow of Eustace, and Reginald Bell.

One-third of Teresa Bell's million-dollar estate will go to charity, as she wished, and two ancient servitors, "Blind Billy" Tomlinson and Ellen Calder, more than a hundred years old, will be provided for. But, although the probate court has brushed aside the strange story of a plot to obtain great wealth through foisting upon a screw man of the world a picked-up family for his own, an appeal to a higher court threatens to bring near rattling of family skeletons.

Bell died suddenly and mysteriously. His body was found in a huddle one morning at the foot of a dark back-stairway. He had fallen down the steps and broken his neck, according to information given out at the time. But before Mrs. Bell died, wandering in her mind and constantly talking of her mystic powers, she was heard to say she believed, Mammy Pleasant pushed him over the bannisters and killed him deliberately.

Afterward there was much slipping and sliding about of real estate—mostly in the name of Mammy Pleasant. It was said that Mrs. Bell was ruled absolutely, with all her household, by the threats and promises of supernatural menace and reward as the ebony person of her nurse and companion doted them out. She let go valuable houses and property it was said, for investments paying a 2 per cent. interest. She finally moved out of the "House of Mystery" altogether, abandoning it to the weird agencies that were said to possess the place.

Finally she, too, began to talk of her exploits in the world beyond the border. Her astral body freed itself at night, she affirmed, and floated lightly over a vast marsh with its Fires of Fate and its weird, undulating gases. She began to trace a kinship with various illustrious personages of revolutionary times. She built up a belief in rare and exotic minerals buried in her Sonoma county ranch. Finally she believed herself to be a great poet.

Apparently no one cared very much about what she believed till after she died and that remarkable document, her will, was brought before the world to accomplish her purpose as outlined by her attorney, of giving "the Bell children a roast and a good kick."

The will opened with a bit of Mrs. Bell's verse: "Perhaps in some one great heroic act The soul its own redemption will attract,

And thus from sin and shame swiftly Made fit and ready to meet the Eternal eye. To live until all is dead within us but ambition and that to live and mock us."

It went on then, the will, to designate parcels of the $1,000,000 involved for charity and to cut off the Bell children with exactly nothing! But strangest of all was the reason, she set forth for her action.

Back in the early days of her marriage, the instrument explained, the rich Forty-Niner promised her $50,000 for each and every child born. She determined to collect as much as she could. With such end in view she enlisted the aid of Mammy Pleasant.

Accomplishing her purpose was not specially difficult, according to the story told in the will. First Bell had to be convinced that a baby was expected. Then, while he visited his mines or journeyed East, the "birth" was made to occur.

The "foundlings" used in the quintet of hoaxes, avers the will, were obtained by old Mammy Pleasant from sources which Mrs. Bell herself never knew. But the Bell children produced a half-dozen witnesses who claimed to have been present when they were born to Mrs. Bell.

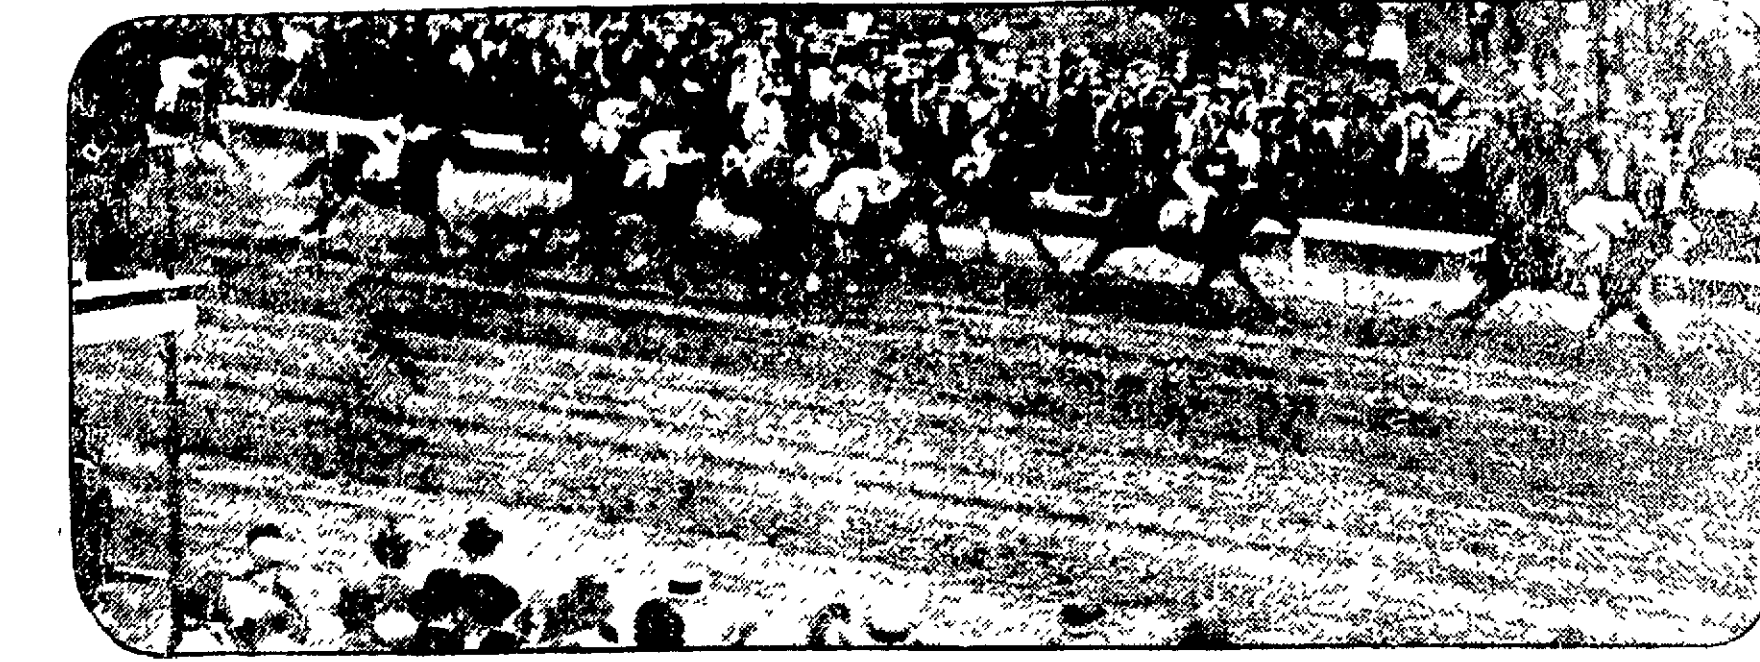

However a jury of nine men and three women decided that Mrs. Bell was of unsound mind when she dictated the will and put her signature to it. Thus had died away an echo of the old, old days of adventure in America, when Romance flourished a gun and San Francisco's Pacific street was a midway of light and color and sound—and pre-Volstead cheer!

Produce at Will A Wonder Child, Says Science

Specialists Tell How Parents May Pre-Determine the Sex and Vocations of Their Offspring, and Make Them Rival the Many Prodigies Who Recently Have Startled the World.

After 15-Year-Old Marion Talley of Kansas City, Mo., Sang Before a Group of New York Musical Experts They Declared She Had the "Ripe" Voice of an Adult Opera Singer.

By Winifred Van Duzer

SCIENCE now flings a veritable challenge to nature. With cool, confident audacity the human mind presently may fit to a certain mould that which is immortal—spirit, character, personality—before ever it is drawn out of the infinite to reside, for a time, in a house of clay.

Having fashioned the soul to its will, the mind then may prepare a body to fit, giving it beauty, strength, grace—whatever seems of most value. After which the whole is ready to be born.

Thus the origin of the "wonder child"—the prodigy which is repeating itself over and over these days from one end of the country to the other.

Or such is the explanation offered by science of the strange little boy or girl of eleven who enters the university to work side by side with students ten years older. Or of the baby of eight who "disps in numbers" as did Wordsworth and talks off real poetry before his fingers hardly hold a pencil. Or of the youngsters of twelve or so who set forth an astonishing knowledge of life in novels.

These children, say the scientists, have been destined to brilliant mentality by pre-determination of disposition tendencies, vocation. Every mother, they maintain, had this power over her unborn child. And to prove it they point to prodigy after prodigy resulting, as they contend, from the will of the prodigy's mother to give to the world a character rare as it is splendid.

Out of Honolulu there has come a daintily romantic novel. It is written in finished literary style and the plot is dramatic.

"Fioretta," the little Italian girl who lends her name to the book, is a sweet singer of Naples. And as her father, of the Neapolitan "poverelli" is in disgrace with her dead mother's distinguished family, she is obliged to sing in the streets. It is after the great composer, Scarlatti, stops to listen, one day, that he interests himself in Fioretta and her father, and invites her to sing in the great Milan festival, in company with the celebrated soprano, Nola Lorenza.

There is a striking climax of changes when Fioretta sings in place of the Lorenza, who has fallen sickly. It takes her audience by storm, and is recognized by her mother's family in the audience. There is a reunion, and a hint, at the end, of the beginning of romance between the little one-time street singer and Scarlatti.

Quite a theme, isn't it, for anyone who can write? And it was planned and developed and sent forth from Honolulu to the world by a little girl of twelve! And one astonishing feature of it is that Betty Thorpe, the small novelist, managed to present a true picture of Italian life and environment despite the fact that she never has been in Italy!

Betty's father is Col. George C. Thorpe of the Marine Corps, until recently commanding officer of the marine barracks at Pearl Harbor, Honolulu. He is noted as a writer principally on sociological, psychological and philosophical subjects. He is the author of "Psychology of the Navy Personnel," "Pure Logistics," and works of a similar character. Betty's mother, Cora Wells Thorpe, is a graduate of the University of Michigan and took post graduate work in comparative literature and history of art at Columbia University. She has written for many magazines.

Betty was inspired to write "Fioretta" by two picture post-cards, one of Naples and the other of Vesuvius, sent her family by a traveler in Italy. She asked and her mother supplied her with an assortment of travel books on Italy, including a Baedeker. Then she locked herself in her room, as she always does when writing, and went to work.

Dr. John D. Quackenbos, alienist and famous scientist, says that pre-determination is possible. "Beauty of person can be imparted by a mother to her child," stated Dr. Quackenbos. "Her mental attitude will color her child's state of mind and affect its career."

But Dr. Alzamon I. Lucas astonished a convention of the Allied Medical Associations of America recently by asserting that even the sex of the child could be controlled! To prove his contention he pointed to his own children, Alzamon L. Lucas, 23, six years old, already a student of medicine, and the boy's sister, Marguerite Vivienne Lucas, both of whom, Dr. Lucas said, were pre-sexed and pre-vocationally determined.

If this theory is indeed tenable, it is possible that it may explain other prodigies, already famous because of their startling achievement. There is Gertrude LeMotte, the 15-year-old American Indian girl who traveled out of Pawnee, Oklahoma, and after only a brief period of study in Kansas City and New York, sailed for Paris, where she is among the critics. She is called the "future Teresa Carreño," and it is said that after proper training she will rival Paderewski and Liszt in mastery of the keyboard.

Raymond Murray (above), 12-Year-Old Ice-Skating Wonder of New York, Has Won 26 Medals in Three Years. At Right, Mayo Cleveland, 8 Years Old, Whose Preaching Recently Astonished Hearers in Greenville, Texas.

A prodigy of another sort is 12-year-old Raymond Murray, who for the past few years has been competing for the junior skating titles of the land, and racing against skaters twice his age. During three years of competition he has won 26 medals and astonished beholders who have thrilled to his speed and skill.

Then there is eight-year-old Mayo Cleveland, son of the Rev. W. G. Cleveland of Greenville, Tex., the youngest preacher in the world. Since he was able to talk the tiny Mayo has expressed a desire to enter the ministry. He is already very familiar with the various books of the Bible and a few weeks ago he delivered his first sermon in the Baptist Church at Greenville. The gifted lad chose his own text and astonished the congregation by his splendid and unflinching delivery.

Child composers have appeared at different periods in modern times. There was Mozart, for instance, who began to create music when he was only a tot. Not so ambitious as the compositions of little Betty Gulick, a New York child, aged 10, but she has composed a song which promises to be one of the season's hits, and a New York music publishing firm has offered her ture and chemistry are among the subjects she mastered there. Under her father's training, she read and discussed the daily newspapers instead of fairy stories during her childhood.

Six-Year-Old Alzamon Ira Lucas Discusses Medical Theories with His Father, Dr. Alzamon Ira Lucas. Recently the Youngster Delivered a Lecture on Anatomy Before the Eleventh Annual Convention of the Allied Medical Association at Atlantic City.

At Ten, Little Betty Gulick Is a Composer, Actress and Author.

a contract which calls for the rights to her future compositions. In addition to her talent as a song writer small Betty shows promise as an actress, has written bedtime stories for other kiddies, and has made records for talking machines.

One of the most interesting students to enroll at Columbia University for some time is a girl named Rosie Reeve. She is just a little over four feet tall, and tips the scales at 84 pounds. And she is exactly 11 years old.

Like the other prodigies mentioned here, Rosie appears to have inherited her ability from one or both of her parents. Her father is Thomas L. Reeve, a college professor, and his training has supplemented the four years his daughter spent in a Chicago grammar school, and her freshman course at Western University, London, Ontario. French, Spanish, English litera-

"I never have studied—I just have learned," is the explanation this little girl gives for the process by which she has filled her brain in so short a time with knowledge which the average human being requires at least eighteen years of vigorous life to get. "I have one ambition—to help Father teach. No matter what course I take, that is what I'm going to do."

And one of the newest prodigies to startle New York was Marion Talley, girl singer, who entered the metropolis all unannounced and astonished Otto Kaln, Gatti-Casazza, director of the Metropolitan Opera forces; Nahon Franko, Bodansky and others, who hailed her as the find of the year.

Marion is the daughter of a railroad telegraph operator. While her family is comfortably off, she has had none of the advantages offered by wealth. But the best teachers in Kansas City undertook her training after hearing her sing in the church choir. And last summer she appeared with the Kansas City Grand Opera Company, and that appearance was the impetus which finally landed the thoughtful-eyed, quiet little girl in New York, where she will spend some time fitting herself for a bright place midst the Metropolitan galaxy of stars.
